ABSTRACT:

«...have I reached innovation? no... or better not yet. I am confident it is there, at reach. Let me recount my last years since 2010 when my brother and I started a – so to say – journey to develop a new technology to recover heat from exhausts and produce electricity. The ideas as well as the opportunities have multiplied since then; today – after ups and downs – we are close to realize an innovative process. I hope this narration may be of help for all of us by identifying avoidable mistakes, recognizing good moves and – why not – inspiring future steps. »
